"I am thrilled for Brittany and her much deserved promotion. Over the last two years, Brittany has been integral to the success of Meet in Marshalltown and the growing economic impact of tourism in Marshalltown." said Marshalltown Area Chamber of Commerce Tourism Director Dylan Does. "In Brittany's new role, her combination of creativity, marketing skill, and Marshalltown pride, will continue to elevate Marshalltown's tourism impact."

Sichra started as the Chamber's Event & Tourism Coordinator in April 2024. Her creativity and enthusiasm for promoting the Marshalltown area will be valuable as the Chamber continues to grow its tourism efforts.

"Brittany brings energy and fresh ideas to everything she touches," said Hall. "Tourism is a front door for our community, and I am confident she will open it wider for visitors, new residents and future investors alike."

Jenna Dooley has been promoted to Member Events & Administrative Coordinator, where she will plan and execute Chamber events and continue to oversee the administrative operations and day-to-day member services. Dooley plays an important role in coordinating Chamber events, assisting with member communications and ensuring that the Chamber's programs and activities run smoothly.

Dooley started with the Chamber in February 2025 as Administrative Assistant. Her organizational skills, attention to detail and commitment to providing excellent member service make her a strong fit for her expanded role.

"Jenna is often the first person our members talk to, and she sets the tone for the experience they have with the Chamber," said Hall. "Her reliability and care for our members have made her someone our whole team counts on."

"Jenna has proven her dedication to the Chamber," said Sarah Smith, Vice President of the Marshalltown Area Chamber of Commerce. "I am excited to see her take on new responsibilities and continue growing in her role."

Major MRI Upgrade Prepares UnityPoint Health for Breast Cancer Awareness Month

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month, and UnityPoint Health – Marshalltown is ready for the community's imaging needs after a major upgrade to its MRI suite earlier this year.

The new MRI machine brings faster scan times, enhanced image quality and new diagnostic capabilities to patients throughout central Iowa. The new technology is helping physicians diagnose conditions with even greater precision. Plus, it's improved the patient experience with quicker scan times, which reduces the time patients spend inside the machine.

"For most exams, this new scanner is quicker," said Shaybree Goshon, Imaging Services manager at UnityPoint Health – Marshalltown. "That's especially important for patients who struggle with claustrophobia. Shorter scan times mean a more comfortable experience, without sacrificing image quality."

In addition to improved speed and image quality, the new MRI system has introduced two new services:

• Breast MRI: The hospital welcomed this service for the first time in the spring. While mammograms remain the gold standard for routine breast cancer screening, Breast MRI can provide additional information in certain situations, including when mammograms identify an area of concern, when patients have dense breast tissue or when an individual is considered at high risk for breast cancer.

• MRI Guided Breast Biopsies: This new service is a minimally invasive procedure that locates and takes a small tissue sample from a suspicious abnormality in the breast. Previously, Marshalltown residents traveled to Waterloo, Des Moines or Ames for this procedure.

No matter the procedure, the advanced technology provided by the new MRI machine produces highly detailed images that help radiologists identify abnormalities that may not be visible on traditional screening exams, which supports earlier and more accurate diagnoses.

"Access to advanced MRI technology allows us to capture exceptionally detailed images and confidently evaluate a wider range of conditions," said Dr. Robert Filippone, radiologist at UnityPoint Health – Marshalltown. "The addition of Breast MRI is particularly exciting because it gives us another important tool to help detect and characterize abnormalities, especially in patients with dense breast tissue or elevated breast cancer risk."

The upgraded MRI suite reflects UnityPoint Health's ongoing commitment to investing in advanced technology that keeps high-quality care close to home.

"We're proud to offer this advanced imaging technology to our community," said Goshon. "Patients can now receive faster exams, expanded services and leading-edge imaging without having to leave Marshalltown."

To learn more about MRI services at UnityPoint Health – Marshalltown, call the Imaging department at (641) 328-7687.

Investing Beyond the Classroom: First Interstate Supports Marshalltown Student Activities

Student activities play an important role in the Marshalltown community, creating opportunities for young people to develop new skills, pursue their interests, and build lasting connections. To support those experiences, First Interstate recently contributed $1,000 to the Marshalltown Bobcat Booster Club and sponsored the new scoreboard at the Marshalltown High School swimming pool. The Bobcat Booster Club helps fund student activities across Marshalltown Community School District, supporting athletics, drama, band, Future Farmers of America, and other extracurricular programs that enrich students' educational experiences.

"We're grateful for First Interstate's continued support of Marshalltown students and activities," said Ryan Isgrig, Activities Director for Marshalltown Community School District. "These contributions help strengthen programs that give students meaningful opportunities to participate, grow, and connect with their school community."

For First Interstate, these investments reflect a belief that activities outside the classroom help shape confident, engaged, and well-rounded young people while strengthening the community as a whole.

"Schools play an important role in the life of any community, and the opportunities students have outside the classroom help them discover their talents, build relationships, and develop skills that stay with them for years to come," said Tom Farley, Community Branch Manager of the Marshalltown Downtown branch. "We're proud to support programs that create those experiences and help students feel connected, challenged, and inspired."

The new scoreboard at the Marshalltown High School swimming pool will serve athletes, families, and spectators during swim meets and other school events. First Interstate's sponsorship continues a longstanding commitment of supporting student achievement and instilling school and community pride.

"Our support goes beyond a single donation or sponsorship," said Jenny Meling, Community Branch Manager of the Marshalltown Southridge branch. "It's about investing in opportunities that bring people together and help students thrive. When students succeed, communities succeed."

As First Interstate prepares to relocate its Marshalltown Downtown branch in November of this year, they remain focused on serving and supporting the community it has called home for many years. The new branch will provide an enhanced banking experience while allowing First Interstate to continue investing in local organizations and initiatives that make Marshalltown stronger.

The Marshalltown Public Library celebrated a renovation on the northwest side of the building creating a total of six new gathering spaces. Library staff, trustees, Friends of the Library board members and the Chamber Ambassadors helped celebrate one of the community's most treasured assets with a ribbon cutting.

The Chamber Ambassadors helped Marshalltown Water Works celebrate being in operation for 150 years during their anniversary celebration! The community was invited to the anniversary celebration which offered complimentary lunch, a look at renderings of the $65 million 6-million gallon treatment plant, and a feature of pictures taken over the years.

Valuable takeaways for Marshall and Tama counties stem from visiting Stanton

Residents and city officials from Marshall and Tama counties recently toured Stanton, Iowa, to learn how a small rural community is investing in its future through economic development, downtown revitalization, housing, childcare, and recreation. Participants saw how Stanton is creating opportunities through its Technology Park, downtown building renovations, local business support, and community amenities. The tour demonstrated how planning, local leadership, and partnerships can turn ideas into projects that strengthen a community and improve quality of life for its residents.

The tour provided valuable takeaways for Marshall and Tama counties by encouraging community leaders to look at their own towns with fresh perspectives and identify opportunities for growth. Stanton's efforts serve as an example of how rural communities can prepare for business investment, support local entrepreneurs, address housing, childcare needs, and make their downtowns and public spaces more inviting. While every community has different resources and challenges, sharing ideas and learning from neighboring towns can help leaders make informed decisions, build partnerships, and identify projects that fit their communities. Ultimately, the goal is to bring these ideas home and turn inspiration into action, creating stronger, more vibrant rural communities throughout Marshall and Tama counties.
